STILL ANOTHER OCEAN DISASTER.

The Ship Calcutta Wrecked and 23 Lives Lost,

QUEBEC, ONT., Nov. 16 .- Intelligence is just received here of the loss of the ship Calcutta, Captain Deal, which cleared from this port November 4, for iverpool. She was wrecked off Grass Islands, and twenty-two men of the crew and Mrs. Daniels, of this city, passen-ger, were drowned. Three men and a ger, were drowned. Three men and a boy are the only survivors. On the 7th the ship encountered a fearful snow storm when in close proximity to the Islands, rendering her unmanageable. The gale grew to a hurricane, and the vessel tossed about in the open sea till she reached Grass Island, where she dashed herself to pieces on the rocks. The boats were cut but as soon as launched turned over and all in them were drowned. The only boat picked up was the one in which the captain and three others were rescued.

The Guibord Funeral.

SCENES AND INCIDENTS THIS MORNING

MONTREAL, Nov. 16 .- At this hour, 9 A. M., everything is quiet in the city. The morning opens dull and heavy, and a slight snow having fallen last night walking is very disagreeable. Volunteers are now mustering on Champ De Mars and are turning out in large numbers. The negative have the first state of the first sta hars and are turning out in large numbers. The positive hour for the functal is still unknown to the public, but 10 A. M. is likely to be the time of departure with the remains from the Protestant Consider to one end of the building, and will not interfere with the houses of

The abandonment of the sarcophagus and the taking of the back route around the mountain for the procession, is having a very beneficial effect upon the Catholics, they looking upon it in the way of a compromise. At this hour no trouble is apprehended, and three hours from now the burial of Joseph Guibord will no doubt be an accomplished fact. A large number of policemen are armed waiting orders. waiting orders.

MONTREAL, Nov. 16—10 A. M.—The military have this moment started on their march to the cemetery. They are marching four deep, headed by their respective bands, led by the cavalry and field battery, and present a line appearance. They are followed by thousands of citizens, the greater number of whom are French Canadians. The streets leading to the cemetery are literally jammed by the moving, surging crowd. The formidable appearance of the military will, no doubt, overawe any evil disposed persons. No trouble is anticipated.

MONTREAL. Nov. 16.—Guibord's re-

MONTREAL, Nov. 16.—Guibord's remains left the Protestant Cemetery at about 10:30, followed by about half a dozen carriages, in which members of the Institute were seated. Superintendent Bersseau was the only officer of the Institute present. Dantre's friends having insisted upon his remaining away. The hearse was drawn having insisted upon his re-maining away. The hearse was preceded by a strong detachment of police under the com-mand of Chief Penton. They were fol-lowed by the military, who walked four abreast.

MONTREAL, Nov. 16.—On your correspondent's arrival at the Roman Cathelic Cemetery there was a large crowd of French Canadians around, the majority of whom had a scowl upon their faces. Several of them remarked that they could bury his accursed remains, but they could not keep them there.

At 10:30 the coffin with the remains, which were very light, arrived. It was then laid into the grave. Some astonishment was felt at the appearance of Cure Rousselot, of the Roman Catholic Church, whose name will be remembered as the figure-head of all the law suits in connection with this effort. He asked Superintendent Boisseau how deep the grave was dug.

Chief Penton withdraws the police The Superintendent of the Institute fears that the moment the police are withdrawn a rush will be made and the bones of Guibord scattered to the four winds of heaven. The military have been withdrawn and disbanded, and tonight will tell the story. It rained hard during the entire ceremony.

George Belmore-Another Graphic Sensation-Stanley and the Herald-Business Notes. NEW YORK, Nov. 16. — George

Belmore, the actor, who died yesterday, was the grandson of James Carr, stage director with Kemble, Kean, Ellison and others, and a son of Geo. Garstin and Caroline Carr, also actors. He made his debut in June, 1848, at Devon, England. He was chiefly familiar in representations of characters in Dickens' works. His marriage with the famous Ashley-Cook family is said to have been unhappy.

About twelve years ago he was com-paratively wealthy, but unfortunate speculations reduced his means to small dimensions. His will leaves between two and three thousand pounds to his wife and seven children in London. They will also receive something from the Druy Lane Drayfitti Association the Drury Lane Dramatic Association, which will be sufficient to maintain them in a respectable station in society.

THE GRAND OPERA-HOUSE.-Last night

chronicled quite an epoch in the history of the "Grand," namely, the first appearance in our city, for it might properly be called the first, of the distinguished English tragedian, Barry Sullivan, the acknowledged head of the profession in his home, the home of the English drama. The play was Bulwer's great historical masterpiece, "Richelieu," one that none but a thorough artist need ever attempt, associated as it is in the minds of all with its great originals, Macready and Forrest. Mr. Sullivan is undoubtedly a great actor, as any one who could see him as he appeared last evening in the willy, cunning "Cardinal" must acknowledge. In those scenes where pathos or sentiment is required, we must say he fell short of our expectations, and should he be compared directly to some other "Richelieus" we have seen, we think he would be found wanting, but as the irate and almost despairing Minister, one who has seen his greatest aim in life frustrated by his arch enemy, "Baradas," that "weed of hasty growth," he was great; and as he launched upon the qowering, trembling villains the "curse of Rome" he was sublime. It was beyond anything we have ever seen. He wrought upon his audience even, by this conjuring, and the house, so to speak, great actor, as any one who could see wrought upon his authence even, or this conjuring, and the house, so to speak, held its breath, and then followed the whirlwind of applause. Aside from his reading, Mr. Sullivan's acting was perfect. He never once forgot the character he had assumed, and in his appearance before the curtain to acknowledge the he had assumed, and in his appearance before the curtain to acknowledge the compliments of his audience he was the same tottering, feeble old manhe was "Richelieu." The support was excellent, Mr. Cathcart, however, suffering some little by a comparison with some of our own actors. He is a good reader, but as "Count De Baradas" a poor actor. We hope to see him to better advantage as "Richmond" this evening. Mr. Roche's "De Mauprat" was faultless, and was so acknowledged by the audience. Of the acting of Mr. Southard, Bradley and Miss De Forrest, we have not space to speak; suffice it to say, that to us they were perfect in their respective parts.

WOOD'S THEATER was jammed from parquette to the topmost gallery last night, not even standing room was to be found, and such thunders of applause—feven the ladies forgetting that kid gloves were two dollars per pair—and flour-ished their delicate hands in a way that was astonishing. Lotta was the same sparkling and—as the ladies say—cunning little elf she always was, and carried her audience, as we have said before, by storm. The support was excellent. Mr. Locke, the old Cincinnati favorite, has much improved in appearance and capacity. He is not the spider-like youth he used to be; while others laughed he has grown fat. His "Philosophy Jack" was a careful and artistic bit of acting. Miss Elfa Mayer was excellent, as was Harry Barton. His Italian "Jules Galletti" was a nit. Robinson's Opera-House.—The Mc-
